CIVIL RIGHTS.

Speeches Delivered at a Meeting of Colored People at Island Hall.

A Remarkable Resolution Passed-The Separation Scheme Not Entertained.

A mass meeting of colored people was held at Island hall last night to consider the existing conditions between the two races, The hall was only sparsely filled, only about fifty being present, but those in attendance were decidedly enthusiastic. Mr. John Moss, the colored lawyer, on calling the meeting to

I look upon any man or class of men with suspicion who pretends to be especially the champion of the cause of the negro. We have but one cause worthy of championship, and that cause is the cause of the whole peoand that cause is the cause of the whole people, and our cause is the common cause of the American people. Any man or set of men who advance any other doctrine ought not to be trusted. It would be to the best interest of the colored people of this country to form new alliances. They should cut themselves loose from the political thruldom which is now extant in the United States. There is no slavery worse than political slavery, and I for one this night declare war against it. We should organize at once against party dictation, and give notice now that we intend to think and vote for ourselves. We must divide up regardless of party, as our interests may require in different localities. Party ties should no longer bind us against our material interests. There was a time in the history of this government when we could not consistently be anything else but republicans, but that time has past. The times and circumstances have so changed that we ought not to be expected, as a matter of course to be hound by the dictations. that we ought not to be expected, as a mat-ter of course, to be bound by the dictations of any party."

Mr. John Freeman was the next speaker. He said, "I regret that at this late day we have to assemble on an occasion of this kind. I always claimed that when the civil rights bill was passed there was no need of it. The fourteenth and fifteenth amendments guaranteed to avery citizen his full rights. There teed to every citizen his full rights. There was no need of additional legislation. Judge Mills, by his recent decision, has shown himself to be an honest man, and should be respected as such."

Mr. Daniel Webster Lewis was next called the respect of the respec upon. He responded as follows: "I would address you as fellow citizens, but as you are deprived of your rights I shall only address you as friends of the district. The recent civil rights decision rendered in the police court was a clincher to animus. We come have not to excite animusity but to explain here, not to excite animosity, but to emulate friendship. I am reminded by Judge Mills's re-cent decision of the words of Thad Stevens upon his deathbed. 'Do not let the civil rights bill fail,' and I stand here to say that the civil rights law is not a failure. Judge Mills has said by his recent decision that the negro is a citizen and is entitled to all the rights and privileges of the constitution. His decision has gone over the wires to all parts of the United Stated and the world. of the United Stated and the world. By your meeting to-night you indicate to the people all over this county that you are firm for your rights. The colored race of this country are not mere serfs. They are not ready to meet the obligations of any party who are always throwing slurs at the negro. Let the toesin sound abroad that we are a free people. Let us serve notice on our people, north and south, that our privi-lege is equal rights, and we intend to demand

Mr. Geo. M. Arnold was called next, He arose and said, "Please scuse me, I'm under the weather.'

the weather."

Rev. William H. Scott, being announced, said: "Judge Mills has rendered a decision which will be greeted with pleasure by all African-American citizens. The civil rights law is a great perplaxity. In some states they said it was unconstitutional, and the very jury before which you are tried and the judge on the bench will render a decision against you. The American people must be educated up to it. Some men say we must leave the republican party. I fore we leave. I propose to stay in the re-publican party and drive out all the evil men —they cannot drive me out. There is no safety outside of the republican party for the safety outside of the republican party for the colored man." The speaker then paid a glowing tribute to Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, and said he was the negro's friend, "If I was in Virginia," said the speaker, "I should vote for Gen. Mahone every day and Sunday, too, because he offers to give the negro education and a chance. Educate yourself and then you will get all of your rights. There is only one grand, good party. That is the republican party, which gave you freedom the republican party, which gave you freedom from the shackles of slavery." A voice. What has Mahone ever done for us?

The speaker. He has introduced a bill to educate our children and has abolished the per capita tax.

Mr. George Gilchrist said: "Our race is being discriminated against. Go to the Treasury department and look at the number of colored people employed there. They look like one black bird among one thousand white pigeons."
Mr. Gilchrist then offered the following resolution :

resolution:

Whereas the colored people of the District of Columbia are without the elective franchise, or any potent power to secure their proper recognition under the several departments of the district government, or to insist upon equal and exact justice from our couris; therefore be it.

Resolved, That we, as a distinctive class, smarting under peculiar wrongs, do carnestly petition to the next democratic congress to relieve us from the unhappy position in which we have been placed under republican administration.

After reading the resolution Gilchrist said:
"Look at Perry Carson. He has been put upon the bricks because an insignificant prisoner escaped. Then look at Capt. Howgate's escape while the bailiff sat fanning himself in a back room. The bailiff still holds his position. Why? Because he is a white man."

The resolution was then put and several members jumped up and objected to the words "democratic congress," and moved that "democratic" be stricken out. This objection precipitated considerable discussion upon the meeting, during which John Freeman urged meeting, during which John Freeman urged the passage of the amendment. One speaker said: "Some of these men who are calling out democratic congress now will be calling out democratic devils before two years rell by. As long as a man does right he is a republican. When he does wrong he is a democrat, a devil, and every-thing else."

At this juncture A. St. A. Smith areas and

At this juncture A. St. A. Smith arose and At this juncture A. St. A. Smith areas and said the civil rights matter was a great buga-boo, and that only isolated cases of violation had occurred. In paying his respects to the district government he said: "The commis-sioners are composed of a democrat on one side, an army officer in the middle, and a re-rublicant on the other end. Thus combines publican on the other end. This combina-tion grinds the negro into dust."

A vote was then taken on the amendment to strike out the word "democratic," and it

The original motion was then adopted A clerical looking individual named Niles, of Arkansas, was introduced at this point, and was proceeding to urge that the colored people in the south separate from the whites, when he was frequently interrupted by those present some of whom declared that "you can't work that scheme on us."

"But," yelled Niles, "your brothern in the south are suffering death and destruction, and they sent me here totell you of it. They are persecuted, religiously and politically. The remedy is separation."

A. St. A. Smith jumped up and declared that the project is to locate the colored people on a wild piece of land in the Indian territors and decoursed the remediate and decoursed the remediate as a wild tory, and denounced the proposition as a wild Much excitement was occasioned at this Much excitement was occasioned at this point and the chair pounded in vain for order, which was finally restored.

Niles then concluded by stating that the negroes in the south were campelled to organize secret societies.

"I am not afraid of your democratic bullies here," he said. "I will fight you as you fight me, with either law or arms."

The meeting then adjourned in much confusion.

THE ARCHITECTS IN CONVENTION. Seventeenth Annual Meeting of the American Institute-The Advancement of a Great Science. PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 29.-The seventeenth annual convention of the American institute of Architects began this morning Twenty-five or thirty members were present from various parts of the country. Thomas V. Walker, LL. D., of Philadelphia, the oldest member of the institute, presided. In his annual address he said : "These annual meetings have proved of incalculable service in promoting the advancement of architectural science in all the centers of civilization th roughout the country. The building com-munity is undoubtedly imbued with juster conceptions of the sciences on which our art depends for its stabilities and its possibilities than ever before. Critics are occasionally to be met with who contend that architecture is not a fine art but simply an aggregation of the mechanical arts. It is, however, obvious upon the slightest reflection, that so far from architecture being outside the category of the fine arts it embodies the sentiments of of the fine arts it embodies the sentiments of all of them, though not arriving at any real or positive imitation of natural objects. Imitations in a limited sense comprise some of its principal charms. The National Association of Professional Architects has been in a measure overcome by the organization of chapters in some of our large cities, and if these useful adjuncts could be rendered more efficient by greater activity and their number increased, the usefulness of our organization would be greatly enhanced. Mr. Walker advocated that an effort be made to realize the national character of the organization by bringing into professional relationship all architects in good standing throughout the country, and favored easy terms of admission.

The report of the trustees was then prescuted. Eight associates had been added during the year, and one associate, three

The secretary of foreign correspondence reported a correspondence regarding an under-derstanding with the convention of French architects, looking to an international agreement among architects on terms of architectural competition, and suggesting that a computitive he appropriate to research the institute of the convenience of of the convenienc mittee be appointed to represent the institute. Reports from the Providence, Boston, New York, Chicago, and San Francisco chapters of York, Chicago, and San Francisco chapters of the work during the year were presented. They indicated a growth in membership and general progress. The report of the treasurer showed the cash on hand to be $467.

Messrs. Nickerson, McLaughiin, and Ken-dall were appointed a committee on nomina-tions. The bylaws were amended by remov-ing the limit of seventy fellows to constitute the institute, that limit having already been reached. The number of fellows necessary to The number of fellows necessary to constitute a chapter was also reduced, so that the formation of other chapters might be facilitated. A recess was then taken.
